

Here is what participant Kelsey Barrett has to say:

Peyrissaguet lent a landscape of expansive natural wonder, an ideal herbal immersion. The late Summer foliage was a resource for our daily lessons, perfectly balancing the wide breadth of intellectual material exchanged.

Julia Graves' clinical clarity of plant medicine is complimented by a truly artistic interpretation of botany. Her ability to simplify elaborate theory helped each student progress in the classroom, thereby retaining group unity.

Learning with Matt Wood is a truly unique experience. Matt's in depth knowledge and investigation into traditional diagnostic systems, supported by a rich understanding of plant medicine, lent for exceptionally holistic guidance. Often lessons would magically combined oral stories with analytical prowess to probe our collective understanding of health, nature wisdom, and mystical knowledge; an endless space for exploration.

Truly a planetary convergence bridging together herbal traditions and traditional medicine systems. My infinite gratitude for the profound insights and guidance!
